ABOUT THE PROJECT

As a result of the latest migration flows, thousands of immigrants and refugees have come to Europe. Although at European level there are statistics on the number of migrants arriving in Europe and on the number of people with disabilities, there is very little information on the experiences and status of immigrants and refugees with disabilities.

Many EU countries have recently adopted anti-discrimination laws; the scope of such legislation is usually limited to multiple discrimination concerning employment and occupation. Still, there is a lack of visibility and understanding of intersectional discrimination; thus, knowledge how this may cause discrimination in sectors such as education, access to goods and services, social protection, etc.

This project recognises and addresses a significant gap in knowledge and provision for immigrants with disabilities.

The direct target group of the project is adult educators and social workers involved in non-formal and informal learning activities with and for immigrants with disabilities.

The main objectives of the project are:

- Strengthen the professional competences of educators of how to recognise and handle cases of double discrimination in an educational context.
- Promote social inclusion of immigrants with disabilities and long-term health conditions through non-formal and informal learning.
- Strengthen the capacity and ability of organisations providing learning opportunities to immigrants with disabilities by developing a strategic approach that empowers adult educators to reflect anti-discrimination dimension in adult education.

1st TRANSNATIONAL MEETING OF THE PROJECT IN REUS, SPAIN

The first Transnational Meeting of the partnership took place on 10th - 11th December 2019 in Reus, hosted by OpenEurope. At the first meeting, the partners had the opportunity to know each other better and enjoy the pre-Christmas atmosphere in the nice city of Reus.

At this meeting, all partners gave presentations about their organisations and discussed and finalised all management documents creating the structures for communication, quality assurance and dissemination.

The next step will be the development of the first Intellectual Output of this project: an interactive database with essential information and guidelines for adult educators to use as reference and guidance.

This database will contain information about:

- Legislation
- Social services
- Guidance
- Accessibility information
- List of support and mediating organizations
